12 Frequently asked questions

Maybe your brows sit a little lower than they used to. Maybe your jawline looks softer in photos, or the skin under your chin has started to loosen. These changes are a normal part of aging. As the years go by, your body makes less collagen and elastin, the proteins that keep skin firm and springy.

Ultherapy PRIME is a non-surgical treatment that uses focused ultrasound energy to work on those deeper support layers. There are no cuts, no stitches and no scheduled downtime. Most people need just one session, and the lift builds slowly over the next few months as your body makes new collagen.

This guide explains how Ultherapy PRIME works, which areas it is FDA-cleared to treat, who tends to be a good fit, what the appointment feels like, and how it compares with RF microneedling and fillers. You will also find current prices at both Serene offices, a checklist for your consultation, and answers to common questions.

Serene Med Spa is an Ultherapy PRIME provider with offices in Hudson, Ohio and Barboursville, West Virginia. Our physician-led team is happy to talk through your goals and help you decide if this treatment makes sense for you.

About Serene Med Spa

Serene is a physician-led med spa with offices in Hudson, Ohio and Barboursville, West Virginia, led by Robin Arora, MD and Shweta Arora, MD. We plan every treatment around your goals and health history, and we'll tell you plainly what a treatment can and can't do.

PART 01

How Ultherapy PRIME works

Ultherapy uses micro-focused ultrasound. That means the device sends ultrasound energy to tiny, precise points below the surface of your skin. At each point, the energy creates a small zone of gentle heat. The skin's surface is left intact.

Your body responds to that heat the way it responds to any small injury: it starts a repair process. Over the following weeks and months, it builds new collagen and elastin. As that new support forms, the skin can look lifted and firmer.

The treatment can reach several depths. The device's instructions list treatment depths from 1.5 mm to 4.5 mm. The deepest setting is designed to reach the same supportive layer surgeons work on during a facelift, often called the SMAS. Shallower settings target the deeper layers of the skin itself.

The "visualization" part is what makes Ultherapy different from many other energy treatments. The device uses ultrasound imaging so your provider can see the layers under your skin on a screen in real time. This helps them place the energy at the right depth for your anatomy. Ultherapy PRIME is the newest version of the platform, with a larger screen and sharper, faster imaging.

> In plain terms
> Ultherapy PRIME heats tiny points deep under the skin, using live ultrasound images as a guide. Your body then rebuilds collagen over two to three months. The lift comes from your own tissue, not from anything added.

PART 02

What it is FDA-cleared to treat

Ultherapy is a medical device that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has cleared for specific uses. According to the manufacturer, Merz Aesthetics, the Ulthera System is FDA-cleared to:

- Lift the eyebrow
- Lift lax skin on the neck
- Lift lax skin under the chin (the submental area)
- Improve lines and wrinkles on the décolleté (upper chest)
- Improve the appearance of skin laxity on certain body areas (abdomen, arms and knees), a more recent clearance

Where Serene focuses

At Serene, Ultherapy PRIME is offered for the brow, lower face and jowl area, under-chin and neck, full face, and the décolleté. Ask our team at your consultation which areas make sense for your goals.

PART 03

Who is a good candidate

Ultherapy PRIME tends to work well for adults with mild to moderate skin laxity. If you're noticing early sagging but you're not ready for, or not interested in, surgery, it may be a good fit. Many people choose it in their late 30s through their 60s, though age matters less than skin quality.

It is not a facelift. People with heavy, deep sagging or strong vertical bands in the neck may see a smaller change. For them, our team may suggest a series of treatments, a different approach, or a referral to a surgeon. Published reviews also note that people with a higher body weight may see less change in the neck and chin.

Some situations mean Ultherapy is not right, at least for now. The device's instructions say it should not be used over open wounds, severe or cystic acne, or active or metal implants (such as pacemakers or defibrillators) in the treatment area. It has not been studied in people who are pregnant or breastfeeding. Extra care is needed if you take blood thinners, have a bleeding disorder, form keloid scars, or have filler or implants in the area.

- Often a good fit: early jowls, a lowering brow, loose skin under the chin or on the neck, crepey lines on the chest
- May need a different plan: severe sagging, large neck bands, or a desire for a dramatic change
- Tell us about: pregnancy, implants or devices, blood thinners, past filler, keloids, skin infections or active acne

PART 04

What the treatment feels like

Comfort is one of the most common questions we hear. You will feel the energy as it is delivered. Most people describe brief pulses of warmth, tingling or a deep prickling sensation that lasts a moment and then passes. Bony areas, like along the jaw, can feel more intense than softer areas.

Discomfort varies a lot from person to person and from area to area. The good news is that each pulse is quick, and your provider can adjust the energy level based on how you feel. The newer PRIME platform was designed with comfort in mind.

Our team will talk with you about comfort before your visit. Depending on your health history, options may include topical numbing cream, an over-the-counter pain reliever taken beforehand if your physician says it is safe for you, or a prescription non-opioid pain medicine when our physicians feel it is appropriate. Slow breathing and short breaks also help.

> Tip
> Speak up during the treatment. Your provider can slow down, pause or adjust the settings. You stay in control the whole time.

PART 05

Your one-treatment timeline

Most people get their result from a single Ultherapy PRIME session. Here is what a typical journey looks like.

- Consultation: We review your goals, health history and skin. We map out the areas to treat and talk about comfort options. Consultations at Serene are complimentary.
- Treatment day: Skin is cleansed and marked. A gel is applied, and your provider uses the imaging screen to place the energy. Sessions usually take 30 to 90 minutes, depending on the areas treated.
- Right after: Your skin may look a little pink or feel slightly swollen or tender. Redness often fades within hours. You can usually return to work and normal activities the same day.
- First few weeks: Some people notice early tightening. Mild tenderness, swelling or tingling can linger for a short time. Occasional bruising or temporary numbness can happen.
- Two to three months: The lift develops gradually as new collagen forms. Many people see the most change around this point, and improvement can continue for up to about six months.
- One year and beyond: Results can last a year or more. Your skin keeps aging, so many people choose a yearly maintenance session. A touch-up may be suggested for some people.

> Patience pays off
> Because the result comes from new collagen, the change is slow and natural-looking. Take a photo before your treatment so you can compare at three months.

PART 06

What results look like

Ultherapy PRIME aims for a subtle, refreshed look rather than a dramatic change. Friends may say you look rested without knowing why. Results vary from person to person based on age, skin quality, the amount of laxity and overall health.

Clinical studies have shown measurable lifting in many patients. For example, in an early brow study of 35 people, about 86% had a clinically significant brow lift at 90 days. In a study of 70 people treated under the chin and neck, about 73% had a visible lift at three months. These were small studies, and not everyone sees the same change.

You can help protect your results with daily sunscreen, a good skincare routine, not smoking, and keeping a steady weight.

PART 07

Safety and side effects

Ultherapy has been used for well over a decade, and Merz reports more than three million treatments worldwide. According to the manufacturer, the most common side effects seen in clinical trials were redness, swelling, pain and temporary nerve effects. These are usually mild and short-lived.

Other possible effects include bruising, raised welts or lines on the skin, tenderness and temporary numbness. Rarely, people have temporary muscle weakness or skin darkening. Burns and scarring are possible if incorrect technique is used, which is why training and experience matter.

At Serene, treatments are performed under the oversight of our physician-led team. We review your medical history, medicines and any past procedures before we start. Call or text your office if anything concerns you after treatment.

> Call us if you notice
> Swelling, pain or numbness that gets worse instead of better, blisters, or any change in how your face moves. Most side effects fade on their own, but we want to hear from you.

PART 08

Ultherapy PRIME vs. RF microneedling vs. fillers

Ultherapy PRIME, RF microneedling (such as Morpheus8) and dermal fillers each do a different job. Many people use them together over time.

Ultherapy PRIME focuses on lift and firmness from deep below the surface, with no needles and no downtime. RF microneedling uses fine needles and radiofrequency heat to firm skin and improve texture, pores, fine lines and acne scars. It usually takes a series of treatments and a few days of redness. Fillers add volume where it has been lost, such as the cheeks, lips or jawline. Results from filler show right away but do not tighten loose skin.

A common plan is to lift with Ultherapy PRIME, refine texture with RF microneedling, and restore volume with filler where needed. Our team can help you decide what to do first. See the comparison table in this guide for a side-by-side look.

How the options compare

	Ultherapy PRIME	RF microneedling (Morpheus8)	Dermal fillers
How it works	Focused ultrasound heats deep layers; body builds new collagen	Fine needles deliver radiofrequency heat into the skin	Gel is injected to restore lost volume
Main goal	Lift and firm brow, jawline, under-chin, neck	Firm skin and smooth texture, pores, lines, scars	Add volume and contour to cheeks, lips, jaw, under-eyes
Needles?	No	Yes (with numbing)	Yes
Typical sessions	Usually one	Often a series of about three, a few weeks apart	One visit; touch-ups as needed
Downtime	None scheduled; mild redness or swelling	Redness and swelling for about 1 to 5 days	Possible bruising and swelling for a few days
When results show	Gradually over 2 to 3 months	Builds over weeks to months after the series	Right away
How long results last	A year or more for many people; results vary	Builds over months; maintenance helps	Months to a year or more, depending on product and area
Starting price at Serene	$950 Hudson / $850 Barboursville (brow)	$800 per treatment; $2,100 series of 3	$500 per syringe (most areas)

Your consultation checklist

- [ ] Bring a list of your medicines, including blood thinners and supplements, and any past cosmetic treatments such as filler or threads.
- [ ] Tell us if you are pregnant or breastfeeding, have a pacemaker or other implant, form keloid scars, or have active acne or a skin infection.
- [ ] Ask: Am I a good candidate, and what change is realistic for my level of laxity?
- [ ] Ask: Which areas would you treat, and why? Would adding the neck or décolleté help?
- [ ] Ask: What comfort options are right for me, and what should I do before my appointment?
- [ ] Ask: Would RF microneedling or filler help me more, or work well alongside Ultherapy PRIME?
- [ ] Ask: What is my total price, and do I qualify for any current offer? How does the $250 deposit work?
- [ ] Take clear photos of your face and neck in natural light before treatment so you can compare at three months.
- [ ] Plan your timing: allow two to three months before a big event to see the full lift.

Frequently asked questions

Is Ultherapy PRIME surgery?
No. It is a non-invasive treatment with no incisions. Energy is delivered through the skin's surface using a handpiece, and the skin is left intact.

How many treatments will I need?
Most people get their result from one session. Some may benefit from a touch-up, and many choose a yearly maintenance session to keep up with natural aging.

When will I see results?
Some people notice early tightening, but the lift develops gradually over two to three months as new collagen forms. Improvement can continue for up to about six months. Results vary.

How long do results last?
For many people, results in the face last a year or more. Your skin continues to age, so a maintenance plan helps. Results vary from person to person.

Is there downtime?
There is no scheduled downtime. Most people return to work and normal activities the same day. Mild redness, swelling or tenderness can happen and usually fades on its own.

Does it hurt?
You will feel brief pulses of warmth or tingling while energy is delivered. Comfort varies by person and area. Our team will review comfort options with you, and your provider can adjust settings during treatment.

Can I combine Ultherapy PRIME with filler or wrinkle relaxers (neuromodulators)?
Often, yes. These treatments do different jobs. Timing matters, so our team will plan the order and spacing with you. Ultherapy is not recommended directly over areas with filler, so let us know about any past injections.

What is the difference between Ultherapy and Ultherapy PRIME?
Ultherapy PRIME is the newest version of the Ultherapy platform from Merz Aesthetics. It uses the same micro-focused ultrasound with live imaging, with a larger screen and sharper, faster imaging to help guide treatment.

How do I book, and is there a deposit?
Book online through the Hudson or Barboursville page at serenemedspas.com, or text your office. Consultations are complimentary. Booking an Ultherapy PRIME treatment requires a $250 deposit.
